Hello Case Med,

I hope that all is well as we reach the end of October. It's really easy to get cocooned away from it all with the upcoming exams and other immediate obligations, but here are a few announcements that you may find helpful in the not so distant future:

DOCTORS IN TRAINING will be giving a 30 minute presentation to share tips and strategies to help increase your USMLE STEP 1 score this Friday, October 25th @ 12pm in E-301. This will be right in the middle of the day during lunch in Musculoskeletal Week so every M2 should be able to make it. DIT will also be offering DISCOUNTS on their program and FREE T-SHIRTS. To make the pot even sweeter, DIT has also been generous enough to provide FREE BREAKFAST that morning outside of E-401 and FREE LUNCH during the presentation. If you need further incentive to attend the meeting, DIT will also donate $5 to the STUDENT RUN FREE CLINIC for every student in attendance. So, M1s (M3s and M4s in the area), if you are curious about how to study for STEP 1 already or just want a free meal, please stop in!

Have you ever considered getting your MBA? Well then, you are in luck. The Cornell One-Year MBA Program in Ithaca, NY has received a lot of interest from medical students to pursue the MD/MBA option. The admissions office at Cornell, through a former student and Case Western alum are holding an informational session on Friday, November 15 from 12:00-1:00pm. The location is TBA. Interested students will be able to sit for formal interviews that day. Therefore, if you decide to apply this year, your interview would already be completed. If you have not considered this option before, there will also be available time slots for informational interviews as well. Typically, medical students that choose to obtain their MBA will do so between their third and fourth year of med school. All students are invited to the information session, but second and third year students would gain the most benefit.

Do you have a medical celebrity crush you've always wanted to hear speak? Your Vice President Nischay Rege and I are restarting the CSR Speaker Series and are looking for suggestions for notable persons related to medicine or public health policy. They could be pretty much anyone of relevance: politician, practicing doctor, author, researcher, activist, ect. Please send your suggestions to Nischay Rege (nkr18@case.edu) or myself, Abraham Feshazion (axf240@case.edu).

Q: Why did the Gingerbread Man go to Weatherheadless is here! Sponsored by the Weatherhead School of Management's Graduate Student Affairs and Graduate Business Student Association (GBSA), Graduate Student Senate (GSS), Graduate Professional Council (GPC), and the School of Dental Medicine, Weatherheadless is a Halloween costume party open to the professional and graduate students of CWRU and their guests ages 21+. There will be cash prizes for the best individual costume, best group costume, and a trophy for the graduate or professional program that has the overall best costumes, so come dressed in your best! Admission includes heavy appetizers, up to five alcoholic drink tickets and unlimited non-alcoholic drinks. It all goes down on Saturday October 26th at 8pm on campus at the Peter B. Lewis Building 11119 Bellflower Road. There are no paper tickets; students can purchase admission and a spot on the guest list via the registration link:

<http://weatherhead.case.edu/events/2013/10/26/weatherheadless-ball-2013/> Online ticket sales end Thursday 9am October 24, after that they are at the door. There are a limited number of discounted rate tickets at $15, but once those tickets are all sold out it will go to regular price for tickets at $20. Tickets at the door will be $30 per person. All ticket sales at the door are cash only and will require a CWRU ID and a government-issued ID.

We've changed the CSR Constitution! The revised constitution will be posted on the CSR website later this week at casemed.org. In summary the changes added responsibilities to the executive board in attempt to keep the CSR webpage up to date. Also, we've made our class officers the official representatives to the Graduate Professional Council (GPC). Our class officers will be the persons to contact for all inter-professional events.

That's all for now.

-Abe, CSR President, M2
